

ENJOY LAIDBACK LUXURY IN THE MYRTLE BEACH AREA WITH WORLD-CLASS DINING AND INVITING SPA RETREATS

The perfect way to spoil yourself

Vacations don't come along everyday; and when they do, it's the perfect time for travelers to unwind, rejuvenate and even indulge. While Myrtle Beach makes it easy for travelers to save, the area's offerings allow for just the right amount of "laid back luxury" – fulfilling the high standards of discerning travelers with its impeccable dining and pampering spas. So, spend a day on the beach soaking up the sun, and later, spend a little time spoiling yourself.

DECADENT DINING EXPERIENCES

The Brentwood Restaurant

Owned by Eric and Kim Masson from Saratoga Springs, New York, The Brentwood is located in a beautiful Victorian home built in 1910 in Little River, SC. The restaurant offers guests an artful menu of an interesting mix of French and Lowcountry cuisine, emphasizing fresh and local quality products. There are three private dining rooms where diners can enjoy a variety of food, including prime rib, fish, lamb and poultry, to name a few. After dinner, guests can retreat upstairs to enjoy an after-dinner drink or a fine cigar and live entertainment. The Brentwood also offers French cooking classes taught by the French native, Chef Eric Masson and has its own wine club. For more information, visit www.thebrentwoodrestaurant.com.

High Hammock

As fine and comfortable as the hammocks themselves; Hammock Shops Village in Pawleys Island is home to High Hammock, Maverick Seaside Kitchen. This beautiful restaurant serves up the best Lowcountry and Southern cuisine, made with the freshest local and regional ingredients and prepared with a Maverick twist. Guests are invited to relax in one of several comfortable and attractive dining rooms or on the porch, just like families have done for generations at Pawleys Island. Lively, yet laidback, inviting and familiar, and always with exceptional hospitality in full swing – that's High Hammock.
